Zoom Meeting Room

2 – 3 p.m. Expanding the Herd: The Impact of Coeducation at CC – Exhibit and Gallery Talk

The decision to make Connecticut College a co-educational institution in 1969 permanently changed the College. From prompting spatial and academic growth, to the development of a more extensive athletics program, to altering college gender dynamics, the decades following the shift to co-education opened the doors to a new era for Connecticut College. College Archivist Deborah Kloiber will guide alums through an exhibit dedicated to exploring these changes, followed by a discussion. All attendees are encouraged to view the exhibit, located on the first floor of Shain Library, prior to this discussion. Come share your memories and experiences!

Charles Chu Reading Room, Charles E. Shain Library

2 – 3:30 p.m. | Teaching - Then and Now, A Class of 1973 Program

How students learn has changed radically with the common use of the internet, laptops, and now Artificial Intelligence. Has the teaching style radically changed with the changing times? What vintage methods still work? How do we measure success in education today? Professor Isaac Gottesman, Lenore Tingle Howard '42 Associate Professor of Education Department Chair, will walk us through the evolution of education.

Then we will be joined by Professor Suzuko Knott, Associate Professor of German Director of the Toor Cummings Center for International Studies & the Liberal Arts (CISLA), who will help us explore Conn's new curriculum, Connections, and how our alma mater is on the cutting edge of learning in the 21ST century.

Ernst Common Room,
Blaustein Center for the Humanities

2 – 3:30 p.m. | Marine Conservation and Restoration

Maria Rosa, George & Carol Milne Assistant Professor of Biology, will showcase the living shoreline project at the Connecticut College Waterfront. The project, Camel's Reef, is part of a project with students at Conn. It represents a small scale habitat restoration project, conceived to protect our shoreline and restore crucial habitat to the area. The project serves as a living classroom, providing experiential learning opportunities to Conn students. Trolley service to and from Waterfront is available for pickup in front of Harris Dining Hall.

50 Years of Rowing at Connecticut College

We are excited to welcome you back to campus for a weekend of fun, friendship, and celebration on Conn's spectacular new Kohn Waterfront as we recognize this significant milestone for Camel Women's and Men's Rowing Programs. If you haven't had the opportunity to come back to campus and see how we've transformed the waterfront, now's your chance! The Waterfront Revitalization Project enhances this unique site, the only waterfront in the NESCAC, for rowing, sailing and marine science while also providing a new place for rest, reflection and recreation for the Conn and New London communities.

The project was made possible by leadership gifts from champion rower and Athletics Hall of Famer, Jessica Archibald '95, and former chair of the CC Board of Trustees, Barbara Shattuck Kohn '72 GP'24.

This weekend event takes place during Reunion Weekend on campus where we will be celebrating classes ending in 3s and 8s. Rowing alumni are invited to participate in all Reunion events of interest!
